For those looking for a reliable and profitable way to improve their finances, investing in property is a popular investment option in the UK. It is no secret that even investors from overseas are tapping into the country's lucrative property market and benefitting from high capital appreciation and substantial rental yields.

However, property investment is not something you can leap into blindly. Every investor needs to work out their budget and establish their investment goals and risk appetite. Many investors, particularly those who are new to property, are often left wondering how much capital they will need to fund a successful investment.

For many years it was believed that you would need to part with a serious amount of cash to start a property investment career. However, with new products on the market, there are ways to invest in UK property for investors with lower budgets.

Below, TAB highlights the different considerations for property investors with a budget and the best way to make the most of your capital.

How to invest in UK property with a limited budget

Typically, figures between £50,000 and upwards of £500,000 are commonplace when it comes to investing in property. However, it's important to note that there are ways to facilitate investments on a lower budget. It can be wise to keep the following in mind when wishing to expand your portfolio without a huge cash sum available:

- Consider investing in an affordable or up and coming location
- Research investment opportunities that offer discounts or off-plan properties
- Investigate the different finance options available to make the most of your cash
- Choose an investment that is affordable and aligns with your goals and risk appetite

Fractional investment for residential and commercial properties

Fractional investing is a progressive investment vehicle. It gives investors access to properties that they would not be able to invest in otherwise. Its barriers to entry are significantly less than buying or developing an entire property which makes it a great tool for investors who are just starting out or for those who are considering alternative ways to spread and expand their investment portfolios.

In short, fractional investment (also known as fractional ownership) allows investors to own a percentage share of a property. Multiple parties who have all invested into a property will have ownership and benefit from their share of the assets' income.

Investors benefit from not only the rental yield of the property but any capital appreciation should they sell their percentage share of the property in the future. It should be noted that property prices can go down as well as up.

What is the fractional ownership process with TAB?

- 1) Before investors are involved, TAB is working behind the scenes to identify suitable property investments that offer long term sustainable income opportunities. TAB will buy the property and hold it on trust for investors via a special purpose vehicle (SPV).
- 2) Properties will be listed on TAB Market. Full investment details of each property are available on the investment details page which can be accessed once an investor has registered for a TAB account.
- 3) Through browsing properties on TAB Market, investors can invest from £1,000.
- 4) Once the property has been fully funded by investors, funds are sent and the property is purchased on behalf of the SPV.
- 5) The SPV will be the legal owner of the property and the investors are listed as beneficiaries.
- 6) TAB AM will act as the property manager and monthly statements detailing the income generated will be sent to investors monthly. Anticipated rental income forms part of an annual calculation provided to investors which stipulates the fixed income return for the year.
- 7) At the end of the initial term (which is typically 3 years), investors can choose to sell their portion of the property. TAB will aim to find a willing buyer for the percentage share. If this does not happen the property will be listed for sale on the open market.
